

6 Common Mistakes Most Parents Make When Naming Guardians

Have you made one of these 6 common mistakes that could leave your kids in the care of someone you would never choose?

1

Named a couple to act as guardians and you haven't said what should happen if the couple broke up or one of the partners in the couple died.

2

Only named one possible guardian. What if something happens to your first choice?

3

Considered financial resources when deciding who should raise your children. Your guardians do not have to (and often should not) be financial decision makers for your kids.

4

Only have a Will, which means the Court will distribute your money, it's totally public and doesn't protect your money if your kids ever face divorce or a lawsuit.

5

Did not exclude anyone who might challenge your guardian decisions or who you know you'd never want to care for your kids.

6

Only named guardians for the long-term and did not make any arrangements for the short term if you were in an accident. What would happen in those immediate hours until your permanent guardians could arrive?
